Biographical note

Micheline Resco (b.1896) was a Rumanian-born, Parisian portrait artist best known as the mistress and then second wife of John J. Pershing, Commanding General of the American Expeditionary Forces during the First World War. In 1917, Resco was commissioned by the French Minister of War to paint a portrait of Pershing, and the two met for the first time at the Crillon Hotel in Paris. Resco and Pershing began a relationship that lasted for over thirty years until the general's death in 1948.

Resco followed Pershing to the United States a few months after he left France in 1919, where she split her residence between New York City and Washington, DC. Though their relationship remained secret to the general public, Resco corresponded with several members Pershing's family, particularly his son, Warren, brother, James F. Pershing, and sister-in-law, Jessie Jackson Pershing. Resco and Pershing were married by a Catholic priest at Walter Reed Hospital, where Pershing was recovering from a stroke, in 1946. After the general's death at the age of 88, Resco returned to Paris.

Fr. Donald W. Smythe, SJ, a Professor of American History at John Carroll University and a Pershing biographer, acquired Resco's letters and other materials in the 1970s from a mutual acquaintance, John O'Driscoll. The letters were used in his book, Pershing: General of the Armies, published in 1986 by Indiana University Press. Smythe died in 1988.

Scope and content note

This collection contains letters, telegrams, photographs, greeting cards, event memorabilia, speech typescripts, and clippings, as well as financial and legal papers documenting the romantic relationship of General John J. Pershing and Micheline Resco from their meeting in 1917 until the general's death in 1948. The bulk of the collection consists of letters and telegrams from Pershing to Resco during the general's time away from his mistress while serving as Commanding General of the American Expeditionary Forces or touring military bases following the First World War. The collection also includes photographs of Pershing, mostly taken during his travels after World War I; Pershing memorabilia, such as calendars and cards bearing his image; several typescripts of speeches delivered by Pershing in honor of the veterans and casualties of the Great War; financial and legal documents benefiting Resco after Pershing's death; as well as clippings about Pershing from era newspapers and magazines.

Subseries 1.1. John Joseph Pershing letters, 1917-1940

Scope and content note:

This series contains letters written by John J. Pershing to his mistress, Micheline Resco. Many of the letters were written to Resco during Pershing's time as Commanding General of the American Expeditionary Forces during the First World War while Resco was living with her mother on the rue Desrenaudes in Paris. Letters written after World War I were often written by Pershing during his travels inspecting United States military outposts in South America and while on speaking tours. Pershing often included two letters, written days apart, in the same envelope or continued several days of correspondence on the same sheet of paper. Some of Pershing's letters include clippings from newspapers and popular magazines, visiting cards, and pressed flowers.

Dates written in pencil and pen on accompanying envelopes may have been added later by Resco or a collector.

Subseries 1.3 Telegrams, 1918-1926

Scope and content note:

This series contains telegrams sent to Micheline Resco from General John J. Pershing, his military aide, George E. Adamson, as well as members of Resco and Pershing's social circle. In order to maintain their privacy, Pershing sent all telegrams to Resco under a series of pseudonyms. He also devised telegram codes with certain words standing in for longer, often romantic, phrases. Keys for these telegram codes, written in Pershing's own hand, have been included in this series.

Arrangement note:

This subseries is arranged chronologically. A key for the code words used by Pershing and Resco when sending telegrams is at the end of this subseries.
